WENDY'S WISDOM

I'm writing this on Sunday night and it's the first time for five weeks I've had the opportunity to stay at home for the week end – I'm looking at the Story Bridge, all decked out in deep red lights and pillars and I can't help but smile. What an amazing city we live in, and amazing country.

This weekend I've had the chance to catch up and spend time with six people I put in the box marked as 'friends' and four of them are friends I've made through Rotary. Friends it's a pleasure to spend time with – whether it's for thirty minutes or three hours.

It's important to remember to take time together so that the bank's full for the times when conversations get a little clipped and it seems there are more chances to disagree than to agree.

I've also had a week when I had the chance to help promote a young man who's worked to develop and practice new skills and is more than ready to take on additional responsibilities in the workplace. He's got the balance right. He keeps a focus on the business, watches and works to bring budgets in on line but always remembers that he needs to bring the staff with him. What a gift that task was.

And we live in Australia, not Egypt – or many of the other countries of the world where the conflict spills over to touch all. We might question our politics, but I'm sure I'd rather live here than anywhere else.

Hope you can take some time to think about the great things we have to be thankful for.

I'm going to dance now like no-one's watching – hope you're smiling. It's contagious. Wendy

GUEST SPEAKERS

11 July Peter Strong Council of Small Business Australia

Peter Strong has spent much of the last 30 years in change management at the business, community and national level. He has worked for the Australian Government and with Australian NGOs and as a consultant to the World Bank and the United Nations. He has worked on business and employment policy and on projects aimed at assisting countries and Australian regions experiencing substantial economic and social change.

Peter participates in various advisory groups to the Australian government including with COAG, the national Panel for Economic Reform, the Australian Tax Commissioners Advisory Group and similar groups with the ACCC, ASIC, the Department of Innovation and others.

Peter recently sold his bookshop in Canberra, Smiths Alternative Bookshop and is now concentrating on small business issues as Executive Director of COSBOA (Council of Small Business of Australia). You can follow him on Twitter @PeterStrongSB.
